SCHOONER SINKS OFF CAPE COD.

Revenue Cutter Investigates Wreckage in Path of Ships.

Boston, March 6—A large schooner has gone to the bottom off the tip of Cape Cod, in the opinion of Captain Hanson, of the ocean tug Plymouth, who reported on his arrival today the presence of wreckage in one path of coastwise shipping. A shattered spar projected six feet out of the water and apparently attached to a sunken wreck, Captain Hanson said. The position is about northeast of Race Point. The revenue cutter Gresham was ordered to investigate the wreckage.

Attaches His Name to a Two Year Contract for Salary and Bonus Amounting to About $40,000 --Turned Down Federals, $60,000

Tris Speaker the well known baseball player on Friday evening in New York signed a two year contract with the Boston Red Sox, calling for more money than was ever given a ball player, and besides the salary he was given a big bonus.

Tris Speaker and Vice President John I. Taylor of the Red Sox were present after a session of more than one hour and all looked pleased to have the matter over.

Speaker went to the Knickerbocker yesterday afternoon for a conference with the Federal League people, who were bound to get the Boston star. In addition to President Gilmore, there were present John M. Ward, the old ball player, and the Ward brothers, who are backing the Federal league club in Brooklyn.

To Speaker was offered a three year contract calling for $15,000 per year, with a bonus of $15,000, which was spread on the table in the form of fifteen $1000 bills, and Tris found it a difficult matter to get out of the room, even after promising that he would return.

It was a tempting offer but the Texan had the nerve to pass it up and came back to the Billmore Hotel and sent for President Lannin to come to his room. A few moments later Vice President John I. Taylor, was sent for and joined in the conference.

A recess was taken for an hour and President Lannin and Speaker went to the dining room for dinner. The look on Mr. Lannin's face displayed confidence. After dinner Messrs. Lannin and Taylor took Speaker aside for a short talk.

When speaker came down the hotel corridor telling his friends that he had signed with the Red Sox. The announcement spread around the hotel like wildfire and Speaker was congratulated on all sides.

President Lannin was the happiest man in the crowd, remarking that "baseball is an exciting sport for a new beginner. We had to give Speaker the money but he is worth it."

John I. Taylor said that the move was in the right direction, and that the Federals had lost out on a fine play. The Lannin-Taylor combination was game and went fully as

Police Land Carrie Sutton, the Belle of the Ball, and Three of the Male Fist Artists in the Station.-- Carrie Made a Wreck of the Padded Cell

The tango, smoky-looking, glide, strange-looking hop, kangaroo, wobble, roller, pounce and the fantastic movements were much in evidence on Friday night when colored society turned out in large numbers to attend the complimentary ball given by the colored sailors from the U. S. S. Tacoma at Fremont's Annex. The party was given by several of the swell set who came from Boston, Newburyport and other places. It was an all-night affair and everything went lively until 3:30 this morning. About that time a general mixup started over a woman and for a half hour things were lively. During the free-for-all baw of the females attempted to escape by the windows on Vaughan street but were prevented from making a hasty exit by others in the hall. Three or four police officers hurried to the scene and arrested Carrie Sutton, Lemuel E. Wood, Isaac Santor and Sidney Greenidge, Carrie, one of the belles of the social was found in the corner of the gallery where she had retired after the cheering match, dead to the world. The police found it necessary to order transportation for Carrie and she reached the reformatory in a stable rig from one of the lively tables.

Carrie woke up shortly after her room assignment, and at daylight the padded cell where she was confined, looked like the work shop of a furniture factory. She stripped one side of the cell completely and the floor was covered with excelsior and canvas. She was removed to another bundle where she cut out her strong arm-movements and gave away to a little vocal exercise.

As a result of this initial pink sea by Uncle Sam's colored 400, the district court was called upon this afternoon to decide what the clerk of the court should collect from those who failed to escape from the all-night tango party.

THE WENEHASA WIN FROM READING HIGH

Add Another Victory to Their Long List--Many Games Scheduled--High School Class Games.

The Wenehasa basketball team defeated the high school team from Reading, Mass., at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Friday evening in a rather one-sided game, the visitors shooting but one basket from the floor. The Reading team is one of the best high school teams in Massachusetts, losing to Wenehasa, who claim the state championship, but four points. They were, however, outclassed by the local team, which is really a wonderfully fast bunch, who have an eye for the basket and who pass remarkably well. One player, after watching them, said, "They can shoot baskets with their eyes shut."

In the game last evening their floor work and passing was remarkably good, although they were not as accurate as usual at the basket.

The Wenehasa will now seek to get a game with the Weymouth high team, who claim the Massachusetts championship, and who are soon to play the Rogers high of Newport, R. I., for the Rhode Island title. The Weymouth high of Portland, who have defeated all the teams in Maine, will play here on Saturday, March 14th.

The summary of the game of last evening:

| Wenehasa Club | Reading High |
|---------------|----------------|
| Butler 10 | 10, Hutchinson |
| Badger 10 | 10, Downing |
| Sanderson 10 | 10, Barker |
| Brickett 10 | 10, Barker |
| March 10 | 10, Barker |
| Magridge 10 | 10, Barker |

Score, Wenehasa Club 29, Reading high 5. Goals from floor, Butler 2, Badger 3, Sanderson 3, Brickett 2, Magridge 2, Kingman. Goals from fouls, Sanderson, Magridge, Stevens 2. One point awarded to Reading high. Referee, Billings. Umpire, Mr. Phetters. Scorers, Gibson and Moulton. Time, 15 and 20 m. periods.

Other games arranged for the Wenehasa, will be, Salem Normal March 18, Lawrence, March 25, Dering at Portland March 28.

HIGH SCHOOL GAMES

There was but one game in the class series at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday afternoon when the Juniors defeated the Sophomores 26 to 15. The summary:

| P. H. S. 1914 | P. H. S. 1915 |
|---------------|----------------|
| Parsons 10 | 20, Graham |
| Brickett 10 | 10, Richardson |
| Thomas 10 | 10, Richardson |
| Gibson 10 | 10, Graham |
| Hassell 10 | 10, Davis |
| Marney 10 | 10, Davis |

Score, P. H. S. 1915 26, P. H. S. 1914 15. Goals from floor, Brickett 3, Thomas, Gibson 5, Marney 3, Craig 3, Davis 3. Goals from fouls, Thomas, Gibson, Gray. Referee, Billings. Umpire, Sanderson. Scorer, Hayford. Time, Newton. Three, three 10m periods.

BASEBALL PLAYERS BACK FROM WORLD'S TOUR

New York, March 6. It was a fine morning when the revenue cutter pulled up alongside of the Lusitania and following the Customhouse officials across a narrow plank, Pres. Joseph Lannin of the Red Sox was soon in the midst of the returning ball players.

Following Mr. Lannin were other major league managers. Pres. Baker of the Philadelphia Club, Pres. Roberts of the Brooklyn club, Pres. Vane of the Highlanders, and Pres. Ban Johnson of the American League followed.

Then came a string of "war" correspondents. Pres. Lannin was greeted by Capt. Doyle of the New York Giants, an old friend who had the pleasure of introducing Pres. Speaker to the new Boston manager.

The magnates were given a warm welcome and all were in consultation with their players. It was one hour and one-half before the boat was docked, and in the meantime the Speaker and Pres. Lannin practically came to terms, and Speaker said that he was pleased to be back with the Red Sox and would be on his way to the Hot Springs very soon.

Pres. Lannin was satisfied that Speaker would sign up when he was presented with the contract that he would be offered, and Speaker seemed to be much pleased with the new president and the terms.

Pres. Baker of the Philadelphia Club came to terms with Mike Donnan and Egan was signed by Charley Ebbetts as soon as he landed on the dock, as the government officers insisted that no contracts could be signed on shipboard.

Crawford to See Money Spenders.

Leaveness was seen by Pres. Johnson and promised to go with the St. Louis club for a nice raise.

Sam Crawford said that he had not been made an offer and only knew that the Federal League wanted him and that he intended to see the money spenders.

Pres. Lannin and Speaker were early on the dock and were the center of attraction. The crowd recognized the great ball player, but wondered who the fine-looking fellow was that had him in tow.

They were soon joined by Vice Pres. John L. Taylor of the Red Sox, and Tristram, will remain with the Boston magnates until he has had his baggage inspected and hurried off to the Baltimore Hotel, where he will stay until after the big banquet.

The players had many interesting stories to tell of their trip. Speaker, Jammie Callahan and John McGraw being very enthusiastic.

"I wouldn't have missed the trip for the world," said Speaker. "The Japs are the fiercest looking men that we met in the way of appreciating the game. We were treated nicely in Australia, and the King of Great Britain is some sport."

There was a large crowd on the pier and the most conspicuous were the managers of the Federal League, George Stuyvel, Joe Tinker, Mordcau Brown and Otto Kinde surrounded Mike Donnan as soon as he hit the pier, and were looking for Speaker.

Pres. Gilmore and other Federal League managers were on the pier. They had tried hard to get passes to go down the harbor on the Government boat, but failed to connect, leaving that advantage to the magnates under charge of Pres. Ban Johnson.

Gilmore Band Disappointed.

This was some advantage and was a bitter disappointment for the Gilmore band who looked much worried as the boat slowly edged into the pier, where Sam Crawford was the first to reach the dock. McGraw and Comiskey were given great ovations. The little Napoleon was looking the picture of health, while the grand old Roman from Chicago looked anything but well.

The players were all well and wreathed in smiles as they were welcomed ashore by old friends and relatives, as well as the loyal fans. Jimmy McAlister and Mrs. McAlister were given a warm reception by Robert McElroy and several Boston friends, including Jimmy Graw and Jack Donnelly of Lowell.

McAlister was looking well and said that he had no lines out and would look the field over before he decided what he would do. "I think Speaker will go back to the Red Sox," said McAlister. "For his heart is in Boston and he wants to play in the American League."

On the boat Speaker and McAlister were anxious to hear about Joe Wood and the chances are that Speaker will run up to Parkers Glen to see his old side partner before he leaves New York for the South.

He spoke of going to Hubbard City before the season opened to see his mother and look over his cotton plantation, Young Italy, the ex-Lowell player, who won that last game with a home run, was sought after, while the moving picture men were conspicuous as the crowd went down the gangplank.

AN EXCELLENT ATTRACTION

William A. Brady will present at the Portsmouth Theatre on Wednesday evening, March 11th, "Little Women," the story which made the fame of the late Louisa M. Alcott, and which, although first published forty years ago, still enjoys an annual sale of some 25,000 copies and quoted by the book dealers as one of the best sellers of the holiday period. The gross circulation of "Little Women" in America is said to exceed two million volumes.

Large and repeated editions of "Little Women" have been published in England, France and Germany, translations having been made into the native language. It is in all school libraries, is used by all teachers, and is one of the works with which all embryonic instructors must familiarize themselves who go through the training schools of Greater New York.

The narrative in its original form was a children's story, but its juvenile circle that the interest of grown-ups made itself manifest to the end that the author was induced to write a second part, taking the little women of the March family through the delightful period she described as the "loving stage." As is well known the character of Joe is Miss Alcott herself, while Meg, Beth and Amy are her three sisters, Anna, Elizabeth and May, and Mr. and Mrs. March are the father and mother Alcott. Bronson Alcott, the father, was the close friend of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Nathaniel Hawthorne, forming a literary circle, the influence of which was apparent in the simplicity and charm of Miss Alcott's style.

BOSTON OPERA COMPANY.

The forthcoming week at the Boston Opera House will bring repetitions of "Meistersinger" and "Don Giovanni" under the direction of Felix Weingartner, with Mme. Melba's first appearance as Juliette, the first "Aida" with Mr. Weingartner conducting; and the revival of "Lakme" after three seasons.

The week will open with a concert on Sunday evening, March 8. This will be the annual "Weingartner" concert, with Mr. Weingartner directing the orchestra, and Mme. Weingartner singing operatic arias. Mr. Ernest Schelling also appears at the piano.

"The Meistersinger" will be repeated Mr. Weingartner conducting, on Monday, March 9. Lucille Weingartner will sing the role of Eva, Mr. Laflite will be the Walther, Mr. Laflite the Hans Sachs, Mr. Leonhardt the Beckmesser. After five performances of "Meistersinger" interest seems to be increasing, rather than diminishing. The public is beginning to realize the fact that nowhere else in the operatic world could be heard a more complete or better-balanced production of Wagner's great comedy than here at the Boston Opera House.

On Wednesday evening, "Don Giovanni" which had to be postponed last week, will come to its first performance under the baton of Felix Weingartner, who directed its revival last year. The cast will be as at the season's first performance of the Mozart opera, including Emmy Destinn as the Donna Anna, Elizabeth Arden as the Donna Elvira, Alice Nielsen as Zerlina, Vanni Marcoux as Don Giovanni, Paolo Laidkar as Leporello, Vincenzo Tencio as Don Ottavio, and Jose Ardonas as the Commander.

On Friday evening Romeo of Juliette will come to its second performance, this time with Nellie Melba in the role of Capulet's daughter. This is one of the famous diva's most celebrated

They at once plunged into the Federal trotting baseball players after being given a season of real baseball. The world trotters were scheduled to be given a banquet and reception Saturday night, March 7.

Sunday is Everybody to Church Sunday, and while lamentable that any special effort should have to be made to get people to attend church, the condition does exist and it is hoped that everybody will take it upon them selves to attend the services in some of the churches Sunday.

The thinking men of this country, regardless of creed, are turning to the church for a solution of the problem of citizenship for it is recognized that in the church and school depends the future welfare of the country. For this reason they are giving more freely of their time and money to the church and by attending church at least once a week setting the proper example.

All of the local churches have united in this grand effort to awaken the people, and have then attend church on Sunday and everybody owes it to the rising generation to make an effort to go to church on Sunday. It has been a big success elsewhere and it is sure to be a success in this city.

All of the churches will bid you welcome, give them at least a chance.

REBELS FIGHTING AND ARE ROUTED--HUERTA IS WILLING TO QUIT

Mexico City, March 6.—The Minister of War reports three fighting on Wednesday between 3500 rebels under Toribio Ortega, advancing from Chihuahua toward Torreon, and 1500 Federal troops, who had come out from Torreon under the command of Gen. Ricardo Pena.

The rebel army detained at Escaler, about 90 miles from Torreon, where Pena awaited them. He had advanced from his position to take advantage of the natural strength of the "paes" in the mountains.

The fighting began at Zavalza, the next station to Escaler, on the road to Torreon, and raged for several hours. The rebels were routed, leaving 400 dead on the field and many more wounded, according to Federal reports. The Federal losses are not given. The rebel army is said to have taken a train back to Chihuahua.

Indications were considered strong here today that Gen. Huerta is still planning to take the field against the rebels and to consolidate the United States by selecting a successor acceptable to President Wilson.

The first actual step in this direction, according to those close to Huerta, was the appointment of Senor Jose de Portillo Rojas as Foreign Minister, in place of Querido Malena. Rojas has not been of the Huerta party and he is friendly to the United States. It is said that Huerta intends to put Rojas in the Provisional President's chair if the United States will consent.

It was said today that Charge Nelson O'Shaughnessy has been consulted by Huerta in this regard, and that the whole plan has been referred to the Washington Government.

EARLY BAUCH INQUIRY
Gen. Carranza Promises It to Sec. Bryan—Mexican Commission Unlikely to Exhume Benton's Body

Washington, March 6.—Sec. Bryan received today a note from Gen. Carranza, signed by Senor Pablos, Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the Cabinet of the Constitutionalists, assuring the American Government that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Gustav Bauch would be promptly investigated.

The joint commission of American and British representatives, it became known today, will get no further instructions until after the Mexican board of inquiry reports its findings. The appointment of Luis Cabrera as special adviser of the Mexican commission was favorably received by officials here, who have a high regard for Cabrera's knowledge of diplomacy and his sense of the value of an impartial investigation.

That the body of Benton may not be exhumed by the Mexican commission is not at all unlikely, for it is believed the commission will be able to learn just what were the facts of his death from eye witnesses.

Meanwhile State Department officials are giving their attention to the reported murder of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen, John H. Bassett Moore, formerly counselor of the State Department, who is finishing up some work before finally severing connection with the department, was at work today on the complicated questions of extradition involved.

Telegrams prepared by Mr. Moore for Sec. Bryan to be sent to Gov. Coahuila, are likely to be made public later in the day.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE--"CASCARETS"
Salts, Calomel and Pills Act on the Liver and Bowels Like Pepper Acts in Nostrils--Danger

Get a ten-cent box now. Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic and the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to add weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally throw the bowels into action. But a man can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only ten cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

ORGAN RECITAL
A series of four organ recitals will be given on Friday evenings during Lent, at the North Church. These will be free to the public, and all interested are cordially invited to attend. The other three recitals will be given by Mr. John Hermann Lund, of Boston, whose reputation as a concert organist is of the first order. Mr. Lund has been heard in Portsmouth on two former occasions. He promises programs of unusual interest to the general public. The soloists will be Miss Northwick, Mrs. Priest and Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Van Fleet, cello, will assist at the first recital.

Pardoning Murderers.

Not much has been heard of late about the abolition of capital punishment as the penalty for murder. For some years there was urgent contention that the death penalty should be abolished and that life imprisonment should be the penalty for the taking of life. Advocates of the change claimed that executions were barbarous, that they do not serve as a deterrent, and that in many instances it is impossible to secure a verdict of murder in the first degree, when the evidence is perfectly clear, because of the hesitancy of jurymen to send a man to the electric chair or the gallows.

But developments in the last few years, which have come in rapidly multiplying numbers, show that in practice "life imprisonment" is a very indefinite term. The practice of pardoning murderers is growing rapidly, so rapidly in fact as to cause anxiety on the part of those who feel that if human life is to be protected as it ought to be, and as the law professes to protect it, sentences should mean what they say. The common understanding has been that when a person was sentenced to prison for life he was to remain in confinement as long as he lived, unless in the remote possibility of evidence coming to light to prove his innocence.

But the time has arrived when a life sentence means nothing of the sort. It means now that the convict must remain in prison only until such time as some good-natured and easy-going governor sees fit to set him at liberty. Readers of the newspapers know this to be true; they read of the pardon of murderers almost every day, with very little in the way of explanation of why the pardons are granted. In some cases excuses are given, but they are usually thin to the point of threadbareness.

What is the explanation? It looks like this: Where capital punishment has not been abolished by law it has been practically abolished through recourse to technicalities and commutation, and the result is that the prison population of life termers is steadily decreasing, and at a ratio that is perhaps disturbing the authorities. Can it be possible that instead of calling for larger prison accommodations the authorities prefer to let some of the old prisoners out to make room for new comers?

It is not pleasant to believe this, but it is hard to escape the conviction that there is something "rotten in Denmark."

Clergymen sometimes make the rounds of the slums in order to get first-hand knowledge of conditions, but not so with court justices. The evidence has to be placed before them at the proper time and place, and this is why two policemen had to dance the tango in a Lowell, Mass., court at a recent session.

The go-to-church-Sunday movement has aroused some special interest in the matter of church attendance, but this does not justify such attendance as some of the city churches are receiving at the hands of ignorant and misguided men led by I. W. W. leaders under the banner of non-employment.

There has been much talk about the "Safety First" movement on the New England railroads, but what the public would like to see would be a combination of service first with safety, with apologies to the Telephone Company's very choice slogan of service first.

Ex-President Taft is an ardent civil service man, but he admits that it should not apply to "the higher positions upon which the political character of the administration depends." And, of course, the large postoffices are in that class.

The House of Commons wants England to reconsider its decision and take part in the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco. But John Bull is a stubborn old chap, not much given to changing his mind or his decisions.

In Manchester, N. H., many horse owners are discarding the high checkrein. The abolition of these checks would bring great comfort to horses and work injury to nothing but the pride of their drivers.

One of a number of Italians sentenced to prison by a New York justice the other day for bomb throwing was a Count, but that fact didn't count in his favor and he was hustled right along with the others.

Portsmouth's first annual auto show has been a great success in every way and Portsmouth people have thoroughly enjoyed it. Come to Portsmouth for profit and pleasure.

John Bassett Moore resigns as counselor of the state department. But that isn't a break in the cabinet.

Look out for bluebirds and robins. Marbles and tops have appeared.

Almost time for new maple sugar.

General Venustiano Carranza, leader of the Constitutionalists in Mexico, loomed up big in the international difficulty over the William S. Benton case. Carranza assumed responsibility for settling the affair and dealt directly with the United States government. Meanwhile Villa, commanding the Constitutional forces, moved on toward Torreon. This is the latest picture of Carranza.

THE MARCH BLIZZARD OF 1888.

"Winter" still seems to "linger," etc., reminding us of the great and memorable storm of March 12, 1888. So we turn back to the newspaper files of that period and read with renewed interest the account which the Portsmouth Journal (probably Mr. Samuel Dodge) gives of its local work. The storm had its origin near Utah and was started on its career when it was noted on the 8th. It reached the Atlantic coast on the 12th, when it was as violent as the great storm of April 17, 1851, which destroyed the Minut's ledge light. Pedestrians perished in the streets both in New York and Boston. We copy the local story from the Journal:

"After threatening for a week or more, the long-promised storm set in Monday forenoon with a fresh and increasing wind from the northeast, accompanied by sticky, blinding snow. The wind steadily increased in force, and the snow came thicker and faster during the afternoon, until, long before nightfall, a furious gale was raging, putting an end to all traffic and causing the streets to become practically impassable. During the night the wind became squally, but continued to blow with gradually diminishing force until Wednesday afternoon. The snowfall (about 18 inches) was the heaviest of the season, and, owing to the high wind, was badly drifted, many of the drifts being over six, and several over nine feet high, completely blocking the streets so that teams could not be used until the street commissioner had broken them out with a large force of men. As an illustration of the drifts in the outskirts, the case of Mr. Ira C. Brown, the milkman, is pertinent. It took two horses and four men four hours to go one-half mile from his farm near the trotting park, and he did not reach his customers on Middle street until 4 p. m. Nearly all the milkmen met with similar obstacles, and some were not able to get into town at all on Tuesday. The public schools were not re-opened until Wednesday morning. After 10.30 a. m. Monday the city was isolated, not one of the seventeen wires leading towards Boston remaining serviceable, those that were not down being so crossed up to be rendered entirely useless. Along the coast, the storm must have been terrible, but no wreck occurred, so far as known, in our immediate vicinity, although, owing to the condition of the roads and the telegraph wires, our communication with the outside world has been of the most meagre quantity. The railroads in our vicinity remained open until nightfall Monday, but were completely blocked after 8 p. m. and so continued in part for over twenty-four hours. The Pullman train of Monday evening from Boston arrived in Portsmouth at seven o'clock Tuesday morning, eight hours behind time. A freight train from Boston got off the track at Huges' cut, near the Plains, early Tuesday morning, and the wreck was not cleared away until Wednesday, all traffic having to pass over the other track. A freight train left the track at Butler's crossing in Kittery about 10.30 o'clock Monday night; the wrecking train started from this city at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, but got stuck itself at Kittery and did not reach the derailed train until ten o'clock in the forenoon; and the track was not cleared until afternoon, three passenger trains from Boston being detained there until that time.

"The reason the evening train from Dover on Monday did not get here was that the last train from this city for Dover got stuck at Folsom's crossing, where it remained up to a late hour on Tuesday, blocking all passage. The train due here at 10.10 a. m. Tuesday over the Concord & Portsmouth road did not arrive until nearly noon, and was delayed by three engines; the train which should have left here for Concord at 7.55 a. m., according to the schedule, did not leave until afternoon. Altogether, such a blockade was never before experienced on the Boston & Maine, and it is said that the Western division was in ever worse condition than the Eastern. There were no casualties in the harbor, but the steamer landing at Hotel Pocahontas was partly carried away, the foundation of old Whale's Back was completely destroyed, and several boats were wrecked at New Castle and Kittery Point. A part of the Fort road at New Castle was washed out, and it is said that the Beach road from Rye Beach to Little Bear's Head is also considerably washed out and covered with ice and shingle. During Tuesday night the schooner Golden Gate, lying at the wharf at Kittery Point, got her stem under the wharf and was sunk by the rising tide. In all the other cities of New England the condition of affairs was about the same, and even worse south and west of Boston. In New York city the storm was very violent, reaching almost the force of a hurricane, completely stopping all travel on both surface and elevated roads, and blocking every railroad leading out of the city. Tales of wreck and disaster came slowly in, and even now the full measure of loss is not complete, owing to the interrupted communication all over the country."

Kind That Glows.

It is worth recalling just now that there is etiquette to be observed even in being warm. In an old volume for the instruction of youth a young lady declares herself to be "all of amuck of sweat," and is at once severely rebuked by her governess with "Hush, miss! Horrors sweat, men perspire, but ladies only glow."

UNION MEMBER IS 'STOOL PIGEON'

Declares He Was Paid by Mine Operators While in Dynamite Gang.

Denver, March 6.—Arthur Langowski, 21, swore before the federal strike investigating committee late today that he received $3 a day from the coal operators while exploding dynamite for the United Mine Workers of America.

The youth denied he was a spy in the ranks of the union, although he admitted that he was watching "both sides" and received pay from each party to the labor troubles.

Langowski testified that he was secretary and treasurer of the Sopris local of the United Mine Workers.

"They consulted me about everything they planned to do," he added. "I tried to prevent them doing things that would have caused loss of life. They tried to get me to help blow up bridges with dynamite, but I said: 'What's the use of trying to dynamite bridges where there are guards? You'll just be found dead the next morning with the dynamite on you.'"

"So we decided to explode the dynamite out on the prairie to scare the guards," he said. "There were explosions in the neighborhood every night he said for six weeks before the soldiers came. I helped to cause seven of these explosions, and was paid two to three dollars each time for my work."

The youth said he heard all the plots of the strikers and revealed them to Montgomery Mesingal, town marshal at Sopris.

"At a recent union meeting I heard President Lahume of our local say that as soon as this investigating committee had gone away and the militia had been withdrawn, the strikers would start things again," Langowski testified.

The boy declared he had played his self-proclaimed dual role until a few days ago until the union men said I was a spy and threatened to hang me. He added, "I decided to give them something to hang me for."

The witness said he got a millionaire to come here with him and sit in the senate chamber during his testimony, "because I do not want to get shot right here in this room."

WORTH KNOWING.

Few people will say that Noah took more than two of each kind of animal and fowl into the Ark, yet here is what the Bible says on the subject: Gen. 7th chap., and 2d verse.—"Of every clean beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens the male and his female, and of beasts that are not clean by two—the male and his female." Gen. 7th chap., 3d verse.—"Of fowls also of the air by sevens—the male and the female to keep seed alive upon the face of the earth."

CURRENT OPINION

American Citizens Fail to Exercise Ballot Properly.

One of the weakest points in the complete success of our republic is the failure of the business men to properly realize their birthright of freedom in the possession of the ballot. When they find harmful measures thrust upon them, however, they are the first to complain and to lament with a loud voice that politics is rotten. Our people, because they have so long enjoyed uninterruptedly the privileges of a free republic, have forgotten what it cost to secure these.

They need to consider more deeply the fact that the very structure of our republican form of government has been erected by popular will and that its power and its greatness—indeed, its very existence—is dependent upon the duty of American citizenship to exercise the ballot properly. The fact that this tremendous instrument of power is often used amiss is because the sterling men of integrity simply let go of it and allow the politicians to use it as they please.

To prevent this the American business man, the patriotic American citizen in every walk of life, must willingly lend his support to the making of the use of the ballot. He ought to be willing to give his fortune, his liberty and even his life to prevent the downfall of the magnificent structure of government which his forefathers built. He must be willing to yield his share to the support of this government in proportion to what he has acquired as the result of living in a land where he has been free to make the most of his business ability. How can he do these things? By resolving to study carefully the political questions applicable to his day and make up his mind what legislation is needed either for reform or to put into effect new plans for the betterment of his people.

So much the better if he can gather about him the thoughtful men of his community to discuss and debate with them the needs of his section of the state. It should not be postponed till the last minute, till just before an election. There is not then time for collecting facts and weighing evidence and determining policies. Political conclusions should be the result of the most deliberate reflection if they are to stand in the limelight of public criticism. Let the citizen send his communication to the editor of his newspaper, and let the editor discuss his propositions in the editorial columns. This will doubtless arouse further discussion and may lead to public meetings or to sending for some expert for an opinion.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy.

FAINT RECOLLECTION

Dinah was a product of New Orleans, a big, plump "yaller gal" who could cook the finest dinners for miles around. One day a new butler appeared upon the scene, and Dinah's mistress noticed that she took a great interest in the man. At last her mistress could stand her curiosity no longer and asked:

"Dinah, do you know this new man? Dinah look another long and scrutinizing look and then slowly and reminiscently replied:

"Well, I dunno, Miss Alice; but I think he was 'ma fust husband.'—Everybody's.

Chestnut for Poles.

A writer in the Electrical Times recently stated that probably the best wood for poles is cedar, but chestnut also makes excellent, durable poles. Much depends, however, on the nature of the soil, and, generally speaking, native timber will be more durable than poles of otherwise equal quality grown under different conditions of soil and climate.

Bay State Governor Says Condition of Lines Is Due to Officials and Puts Responsibility on Directing Boards.

Boston, March 6.—"Responsibility for the condition into which the New England railroads have fallen rests squarely on mismanagement by the directors of these roads in part," Gov.
David I. Walsh said tonight to an audience of railroad officials at the annual banquet of the Traffic Club of New England.
Former President Taft, discussing the railroad situation in general, agreed that the fault of their present condition lay with the railroads, adding:

"But this is no reason why we should break them down. The worst policy we can adopt is to try to get even with them. We have got to give the railroads justice in our own interests, even if they don't deserve it."

Governor Walsh said: "By coming before the federal government, the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine railroads have taken the position of acknowledging, for expediency or for some reason, that there have been violations of the law. If these two great railroads of New England had obeyed the laws why did they take this course?
The law had been broken. Is the state responsible?"

He said that the state had granted every reasonable request to the railroads and questioned whether there was a single statute that was hostile to them.
"Massachusetts is willing to forgive the past. All we want to know is where the blame has been so that we can find the blame in the future," he added. "The personnel of the proposed board of trustees for the Boston and Maine interests Massachusetts because this state wants to take a hand in the reorganization of that road.
The best way to obtain public confidence is to name not the representatives of banking or railroad interests or men agreeable to the politicians, but men who have secured the confidence of the people."

"Sometime or later you railroad men are coming to the state officials to ask for rate increase. How will a public score, and disappointed hear your pleas? Tell this public that you are through influencing legislatures and dictating to the press. You need these increased rates, and if you come with honest spirit and clean hands the public of Massachusetts will co-operate with you for the success of your railroads."

From a renowned gentleman in Nashville, Tenn., we learn to our shock that the moving picture shows of today are dark holes of vice and shame. Thus spoke the good man before a meeting of clergymen, and the newspaper informs us that his "declaration was greeted by a chorus of "Amen" from his listeners." If such an utterance had found its way from the lips of a clergyman four or five years ago, when ignorance about the motion picture was at its densest, one might have felt called upon to rise up and protest. Today we only feel a very sincere regret that an intelligent and responsible member of a great denomination writes himself down as the victim of an obsolete prejudice.
The usefulness of the clergy is largely determined by their ability to keep in touch with the daily lives of the people and with human progress generally. It is a clergyman's duty to examine and think before he talks.
Tantling and denouncing never do any good. If the speaker has evidence of wrongdoing on the part of exhibitors, or if he has objections against any particular picture, it is his duty to be specific. If he cannot be specific, it is far better for his own reputation if he preserves that discreet silence which is always a badge of wisdom.

"I have never seen a motion picture show and I guess I will go down to my grave without seeing one," said a prominent southern bishop recently.
The bishop is doing himself an injustice. The motion picture is one of the greatest mediums of imparting and diffusing knowledge. He surely would not be proud to announce the fact that he never read a book and never would read one. The bishop of course knows that there are bad books, but he would by no means want to abolish the art of printing.
For centuries man has tried in vain to reproduce motion. At last in this century he has succeeded, and a new way has been found of reaching and impressing the human mind as it never was reached and impressed before.

STORM LESSENS CROWD AT THE AUTO SHOW

Many Out However--Interest Still Being Maintained--Show to Continue Today.

The second day of the Auto Show at the Portsmouth Motor Mart, was well attended, despite the heavy snow storm which prevailed, and while it was not up to the opening day, it was much greater than was anticipated.

The show will remain open today and with reasonable weather a record breaking crowd may be expected this afternoon and especially this evening.

Lloyd's orchestra furnished music during the evening, and it will give a concert this evening from seven to ten o'clock.

The show is absolutely free to the general public and a cordial invitation is extended by the dealers to everybody to come in and look over the cars. They are willing to explain all of the features if you are interested enough to inquire.

Manager Hiram Weaver of the Ford and Buick exhibit received a 1914 Buick Six, seven passenger car on Friday afternoon and he will have it in the show this afternoon and evening. All of the other dealers have made no change in their exhibit.

Distributing Agent Spear of the Hudson cars, was here on Friday and he was greatly pleased with the show and complimented the dealers on getting together and making a show that was a credit to any place outside of Boston.

All the dealers are very much elated with the success, and they all report sales as already reported, and many very favorable prospects.

Don't miss the show this afternoon and evening, it is the last chance.

CONGRESS ACTS PROMPTLY ON PRESIDENT'S APPEAL

Washington, March 6.—The bill to repeal the canal toll exemption, requested by President Wilson, as reported by the House committee, is brief and to the point. It simply provides that the exemption in the Panama Canal act reading: "No tolls shall be levied upon vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States" shall be repealed. Members who voted against it pointed out that another provision relating to minimum tolls also must be repealed or the whole question still will be open and the United States may, in its discretion, allow American vessels free use of the canal. Chairman Anderson limited the debate upon a report to the House and declared he would press the repeal just as rapidly as possible. The committee also voted to ask for a special rule to expedite the repeal. With three days allowed for the minority report, it is probable no effort will be made to take up the bill in the House before next Thursday. At the White House there was every evidence that the Administration was pushing for action.

Same Bill Also Reported.

The same bill to repeal the Panama tolls exemption was favorably reported by the House Commerce Committee today by a vote of 17 to 4. Representatives Doremus of Michigan, DeLoach of California, and O'Shaughnessy of Rhode Island, Republican, and LaFollette of Washington, Progressive, voted against it. Similar action on the bill by the Senate Committee on Intercommerce was promised as that committee also had before it the Clinton measure which would give the President authority to increase or suspend tolls by proclamation. In both the Senate and House it was confidently predicted that more than a sufficient number of votes would be assured in favor of the repeal when the members were brought face to face with the issue.

The resolution, with a similar one by Senator Jones, a Republican of Washington, went over for a day under the rules.

At the White House yesterday the President when questioned about that feature of his address, explained that he meant to say that it was very awkward to deal with foreign nations which took the position that the United States did not live up to its treaty obligations. That particular phrase of the address, however, was widely discussed in official and congressional circles and many constructions were applied to it.

MORE SHOW WITH A NORTHEASTER

A northeast storm, which for a time threatened to exceed that of some weeks ago, broke here on Friday noon, and for five hours it raged.

About six inches of snow fell, and this, driven by a northeast gale, drifted badly in some places. Fortunately the wind died down at sunset and the snow ceased following.

The storm is widespread, and it came up the coast from Virginia, leaving snow the most of the way.

The railroads and electric roads were not interfered with, other than a few minutes of schedule.

BETTER GAME PROTECTION

Editor of the Chronicle:—Game protection means the enactment and enforcement of laws for the purpose of preserving all quadrupeds, birds and fish of a wild nature which are of benefit to mankind.

The effort must be solidly back of the movement and put forth such a campaign of education as to bring the public sentiment over to the support of these laws.

Real protection will come through educating our people to the value of the birds, that they may realize the part played by them and the other inhabitants of our forests and fields and streams in our everyday life. Unless backed by strong sentiment and effective public co-operation, legislation will accomplish little.

There will never be real game protection until the movement takes itself as a support, encourage, and co-operate with the regularly chosen game officers. That support is to be expected as a matter of right from sportsmen, for they are the chief beneficiaries of these measures.

True game protection consists of wise and wholesome laws with rigid enforcement of same with the aid of a strong public sentiment. It is the duty of every citizen to report to the Warden any violation of any of the game laws so that he may investigate same.

The Testimony of Portsmouth People Stands the Test

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and men alone will stand the test of time. Portsmouth people appreciate merit and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. They do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ill is looking for.

Mrs. Arthur M. Morrison, 29 Gates Street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I had pains in my back and sides. My kidneys were weak and often I was nervous and dizzy spells. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and used some. It wasn't long before they completely cured me. This cure has been permanent. You may continue publishing the endorsement I have given Doan's Kidney Pills."

THE IMPORTANCE OF HUMUS

What is Humus and Why Needed.
W. H. Stevenson.

Iowa State Agri. Experiment Station

All soils that are really productive contain decaying roots, leaves and animal life. We call this partly decayed organic matter humus. This material is the life of the soil. It is impossible to grow good crops unless the soil is well supplied with humus.

Humus has many functions in soil. It makes heavy soils open and porous, and this promotes aeration. Clay soils are especially benefited from the standpoint of these changes. It increases the water holding power thus is an important factor in making sandy soils productive. It supplies the bacteria of the soil with food. These bacteria are indispensable because some of them make the nitrogen of the soil available for plants, while others fix atmospheric nitrogen in the soil and render it available as a plant food. Humus gradually decays and liberates carbonic acid gas. This acts on the minerals of the soil and liberates at least a small portion of the plant food which they contain. As a rule, dark colored soils contain a considerable amount of humus and are fertile.

Plants Supplement Manures

If there were an abundance of manure on all farms, the problem of keeping soils supplied with organic matter and humus would be easily solved. All that would be required would be the application of the manure to keep all the land supplied with organic matter. But there will never be enough of this material because all of the soil products of the farm cannot be fed to animals. The human race must have other food than milk and meat. Therefore we must depend upon plants to supplement manures and furnish an adequate supply of humus. In some cases we may use only their roots and stubble; often the entire plant will be plowed under.

If only a limited amount of manure is available some clover or other crop to plow under. When used in this way more humus is secured than would be the case if the manure were used directly. In general the clovers are the best plants to grow for a supply of organic matter. There would be practically no limit to the amount of this material which would be available if farmers would put their lands in shape to grow clover successfully. This crop in recent years has been failing more and more, and land has become deficient in organic matter, and less productive. Drainage, fertilization and use of lime will help many farmers to get the clover they must have in order to keep their soils stocked with humus.

SPRAYING FOR SAN JOSE SCALE

The Only Way to Overcome Pests
H. W. Doyle

Department of Agriculture, Kansas

Look for a flattened circular scale about the size of the head of a pin. The color is almost or quite black, with a ring near the center, on the inside of which may be distinguished a small apple. The multiplying powers of the San Jose scale are enormous. They lie flat against the bark, skin of fruit or leaves of trees and rapidly cover the entire plant with a continuous layer of minute scales. Each scale sucks sap through a tiny beak. Fruit and leaves cannot grow on the same tree. Young trees succumb. The San Jose scale is especially fond of the peach, currant, plum, pear and apple.

Hopelessly infested trees should be cut down and burned completely. A very effective spray, which also destroys peach leaf curl, apple scab and other fungous diseases, is one consisting of twenty pounds of quicklime, fifteen pounds of flowers of sulphur and fifty gallons of water.

Preparing the Lime and Sulphur

Mix a little water with the sulphur into a thick paste in a separate vessel. Place the lime with about ten gallons of warm water in a thirty gallon iron kettle over fire. Add water as needed to keep the slaking time from shortening, stirring frequently. When the lime is broken up into a pasty mass add the sulphur. Then boil for an hour, adding hot water from time to time. When the color changes to clear brown remove from the fire and add hot water to make fifty gallons. Stir and strain through burlap or an iron or brass strainer with at least twenty threads to the inch. Use while warm. In using lime provide covers for the horses for protection against the spray. Old cotton sheeting or burlap sewed together will answer the purpose.

Apply in the spring just before the buds open. Before spraying is attempted trees should be severely pruned and all loose bark scraped off. Absolute thoroughness in covering all scales is necessary because the spray kills by contact only.

In orchards of 100 trees or less a good spray pump with a large air chamber, mounted on a fifty gallon barrel, will answer the purpose. All working parts should be of brass. It should be fitted with a twenty foot hose, an eight to twelve foot extension rod, and a nozzle that will throw a fine misty spray. At least two men will be required to operate the apparatus, one to pump and the other to manage the hose. Large sprays

REARING THE CHICKS

Interesting but Exacting Work.
E. K. Parkinson.

With the hatching of little chicks the arduous duties of a protector, a dietitian and a family physician rolled into one all begin at once. For the would-be poultry raiser must have ceaseless vigilance and boundless patience, as the troubles of chickhood are quite as numerous as those of youngsters, and success depends upon inherited constitutional vigor, comfort, such as freedom from lice and plenty of room in which to exercise, food of the right kind and in the right quantities and protection from weather accidents and natural enemies.

The first three or four weeks are the critical periods and protection is very necessary, embracing as it does the safeguarding against overheating, cold and storms, rats, cats, weasels, hawks and such accidents as drowning, smoking lamps and poisonous moths.

If the chicks are to be reared by hens provide large, safe coops, with board floors and weather tight roofs and sides. Allow room enough for the mother to have an outdoor run, where she may dust herself and exercise properly. Don't be afraid of using disinfectants, in and about the coops and brooders; also be keenly on the lookout for head lice, for these little pests will fasten on the heads of the chicks and gradually suck their blood until they die. Another ailment common among flocks of young chickens is leg weakness, which is chiefly caused by using feed lacking in proper bone and animal matter and too close confinement in overheated brooders.

Gapes and Other Troubles

We all have had more or less experience with gapes caused by a small Y shaped worm about half an inch long, which fastens itself to the interior walls of the windpipe, weakening the chicks by sucking their blood and eventually causing strangulation, but by moving the chicks frequently to new ground, keeping them off the wet grass and, for emergencies, having on hand some good gape remedy, this pest may be easily exterminated. There is also another disease the chicks are heir to, which is white diarrhea. Its distinguishing characteristic is a sleepy appearance, drooping wings, rough feathers combined with diarrhea. This disease may be brought in by infected breeders, poor eggs for hatching or by baby chicks themselves. Where chicks are badly infected destroy them at once. If only one or two seem afflicted disinfect the brooders, coops, feed, water dishes, etc., and try one of the standard remedies.

WHY EUROPEAN FARMERS CO-OPERATE.

Their Reasons and Methods
B. H. Bibbard,

University of Wisconsin.

The question is often asked why European farmers co-operate while American farmers struggle along unorganized. It is not because of any fundamental differences in the men, but rather to the widely different conditions under which the farming of Europe and that of America is done. The European farmer was in desperate circumstances. Something had to be done. For example, the hard times of the middle of the nineteenth century left the German farmer in a fair way to lose the ownership of his farm, for he was without money and aimed without credit. Fortunately, a wise and benevolent man started a co-operative credit company and so marked was its success that there are today over 15,000 such companies alone, and they are still increasing in numbers at a rapid rate.

In the dairy business there was a similar cause for the development of co-operation. In Denmark, for example, there was no adequate market for the butter made on the farms. It was necessary that something be done, and about thirty years ago the Danes adopted the co-operative system of butter making, which had been tried both in the United States and in Germany, and have made it one of the remarkable examples of agricultural co-operation in the world. Butter is one of their main products, and, finding it almost impossible to market it otherwise, they learned to market it so successfully co-operatively that Denmark only one-third as large as the state of New York, and with a population equal to that of Iowa, exports $1,000,000 worth of butter a week.

Success Due to Several Causes

The success of co-operation in Europe, though due in the main to the dire need of the farmer compelling him to submit to regulations not always to his liking, is due to other circumstances as well. For one thing, the European farmer is permanently located and rarely sells one farm and moves to another. This gives stability which an American community seldom has. Again the European farmers live in villages and are near neighbors, with all that that implies. No doubt, too, the European farmer is more inclined to submit to authority than his American brother who is traditionally independent. Finally, the European farmer has been willing to follow the leadership of men who have made it a life work to improve agricultural conditions, whereas the American farmer will not readily follow leaders of his own type.

Officer Is Cleared

The court of inquiry which has been investigating alleged thefts on board the battleship New Jersey at Boston, has reported to the navy department that no sufficient evidence is available to warrant any trials by court martial.

A statement from the secretary of the navy on the case is the following: "The court determined that a bag belonging to Master at Arms, Martin, and entrusted to the care of an officer, was stolen from the officer's stateroom. A bag of similar design to the one stolen was purchased by another officer in Europe about December 10, and was not on the ship at the time the loss of the other bag was discovered. The court expressed the opinion that no further proceeding should be held against the officer in question, as all the evidence tends to show his innocence of all blame."
